Applause
[a practice in Pivot]

In a tree happening to lay:
whirring little, constant bug.
Something one might catalog if so inclined or waft across its lightspun wings a cosmic wind, or simply wall it up.

from what was the silver hand created?
from whence did the ball roll forth?

If thought breeds light from out its titan mouth must all whirring darkness still with pulse be thrilled, or pseudo experienced through chars of acids and electrics unveiled to spiral, funnel both ways towards an open end--

Projected past any sharpshard light, fully capable of existing on such short notice,
buzz erupts in the moving, metal eye.

Who hears inside the original ear
the power of the golden waiting egg?
